

LAW 6252: National Security Law

As Justice Souter wrote in Hamdi v. Rumsfeld, "The defining character of American constitutional government is its constant tension between security and liberty, serving both by partial helpings of each." This course will explore that tension and the vital, expanding area of National Security Law.

Credits: 2.0